- D. Motion FS_2013_14. (Legislation, majority vote at one meeting, from Senator Pete Tschumi, second required)

That the implementation date for the new General Education Requirements (FS#2012-13_10) shall be January 2015 and shall first be included in the Undergraduate Catalog in 2015-16.

Commentary: The implementation of the new general education requirements is trapped between two competing concerns. The requirements need to be in place by January 2015 to meet state law. Specifically, some departments are dependent on the new 35 hour core to meet the 120 total credit hour mandated by state law. On the other hand, departments are currently building the Fall 2014 schedule of classes and must be finished by January 7, 2014. Because the criteria for the approval of core courses have not been approved, there is not time to approve courses for the new core. As a result, departments do not know what to offer or how many sections to place in the schedule. This motion provides time to prepare the new core and meets the state law.

To see the effect of the motion, consider several stakeholders:

For students and advisors: The university only publishes one catalog a year and any student entering the university that year uses that catalog. Students in the Fall of 2014, Spring of 2015, and Summer of 2015 will use the 2014-15 catalog with the old core requirements. Also, the following policy remains in effect:

A student may elect to graduate under the provisions of the UALR Undergraduate Catalog in effect during any semester in residence at UALR before qualifying for a degree. Students who interrupt their enrollment at UALR for more than five consecutive calendar years must use the catalog current at the time of readmission or later.

As a result beginning in Fall of 2015, students may choose to use the new requirements.

For departments: Departments can continue to schedule classes in the 2014-15 academic year as they have in the past. They will need to schedule classes using the new requirements beginning with the Fall of 2015. To ensure that the transition is smooth, the departments need to get their core courses approved in the Spring of 2014.

For the Council on Core Curriculum and Policies: This change converts an impossible task into a merely difficult one. Most core courses should be approved in the Spring of 2014 with the Fall of 2014 being used for any last minute problems. The expectation is that the Fall of 2015 schedule will be built from October of 2014 through January of 2015.

For the Arkansas Department of Higher Education: The university meets the law because the degree requirements are in place in January of 2015.

In addition to the methods of calling meetings specified in an approved governance document, faculty meetings may be convened by a written call of the department chairperson or by a written call of one-fourth or more of the full-time faculty.

Each academic unit needs to ensure that its written policies and procedures for conducting business include, but are not limited to, the following areas of faculty decision making:

1. Attendance, discussion, and voting rights
2. Calling and holding meetings
3. Curriculum
4. Academic policies
5. Faculty recruiting and appointments
6. Promotion

8. Annual review of faculty and chair
9. Term and selection of the chair

In specifying the term and selection of the chair, the rules of governance for each academic unit shall specify the procedure by which the academic unit faculty makes its recommendation for chair to the dean. This procedure may specify an election process. The rules of governance for each academic unit shall also specify the term length of the chair.

The governance document shall follow the review and approval process as specified in the Constitution of the University Assembly.

XIII. Coda

As a generic college constitution, this document is to be used by a new college until it can write and get approved a document of its own. The expectation is that each college will replace this document with a document of its own designed to meet the specific needs of the college. To approve a replacement for this document requires a favorable vote from a majority of the members present and voting at two consecutive meetings. The proposed document must then go through the normal review process of the university with approval being at the discretion of the Chancellor.

When the college engages in the process of writing its own constitution, it needs to add language to specify how to amend the constitution for example, by a statement such as shown below:

Amendments may be proposed by any member of the Assembly through motions submitted at a meeting of the Assembly. Amendments must receive a favorable vote from two-thirds of the members present and voting at two consecutive meetings to become effective. All amendments to this document are subject to review and approval in accordance with the Constitution of the University Assembly before they come into effect.

Commentary: The UALR Constitution requires the Faculty Governance Committee to create and submit to the Faculty Senate a generic governance document for new colleges. This document serves that purpose. It is the Committee's hope that established colleges may also find useful ideas that they wish to incorporate into their documents. However, a generic document must be specific whereas a document that could be used as a template for writing general documents would contain lists of possible variations that colleges might want to use. So colleges are cautioned not to see this document as requiring them to do things as specified here. Colleges are free to address governance issues in their own way within the relevant campus and University system authorization.
