

Using Naloxone to Reverse Opioid Overdose

Common Signs of Opioid Overdose:

- respiratory failure
- slow breathing
- small pupils
- unresponsiveness
- blueish or grayish skin

What is Naloxone?

Naloxone, sometimes called Narcan, is a medication used to reverse opioid overdose.

Can anyone administer Naloxone?

Yes. It is simple to do and could save a life.

What if they aren't really overdosing on opioids?

Naloxone is harmless if given to someone who doesn't need it.

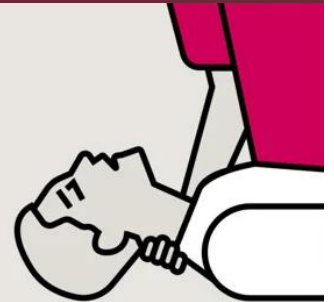

Where can I find Naloxone?

UA Little Rock has installed 33 opioid overdose kits across campus. These will improve the capacity of bystander rescuers to save the lives of victims of opioid overdose. See the back of this flyer for a map of campus kit locations.

If you find someone who has overdosed on opioids:

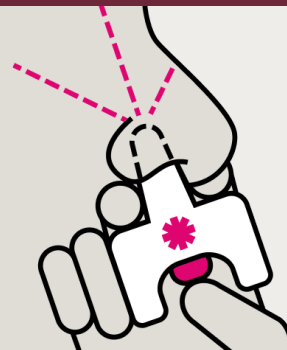

LAY

- Check for symptoms
- Lay the person on their back and tilt their head up

SPRAY

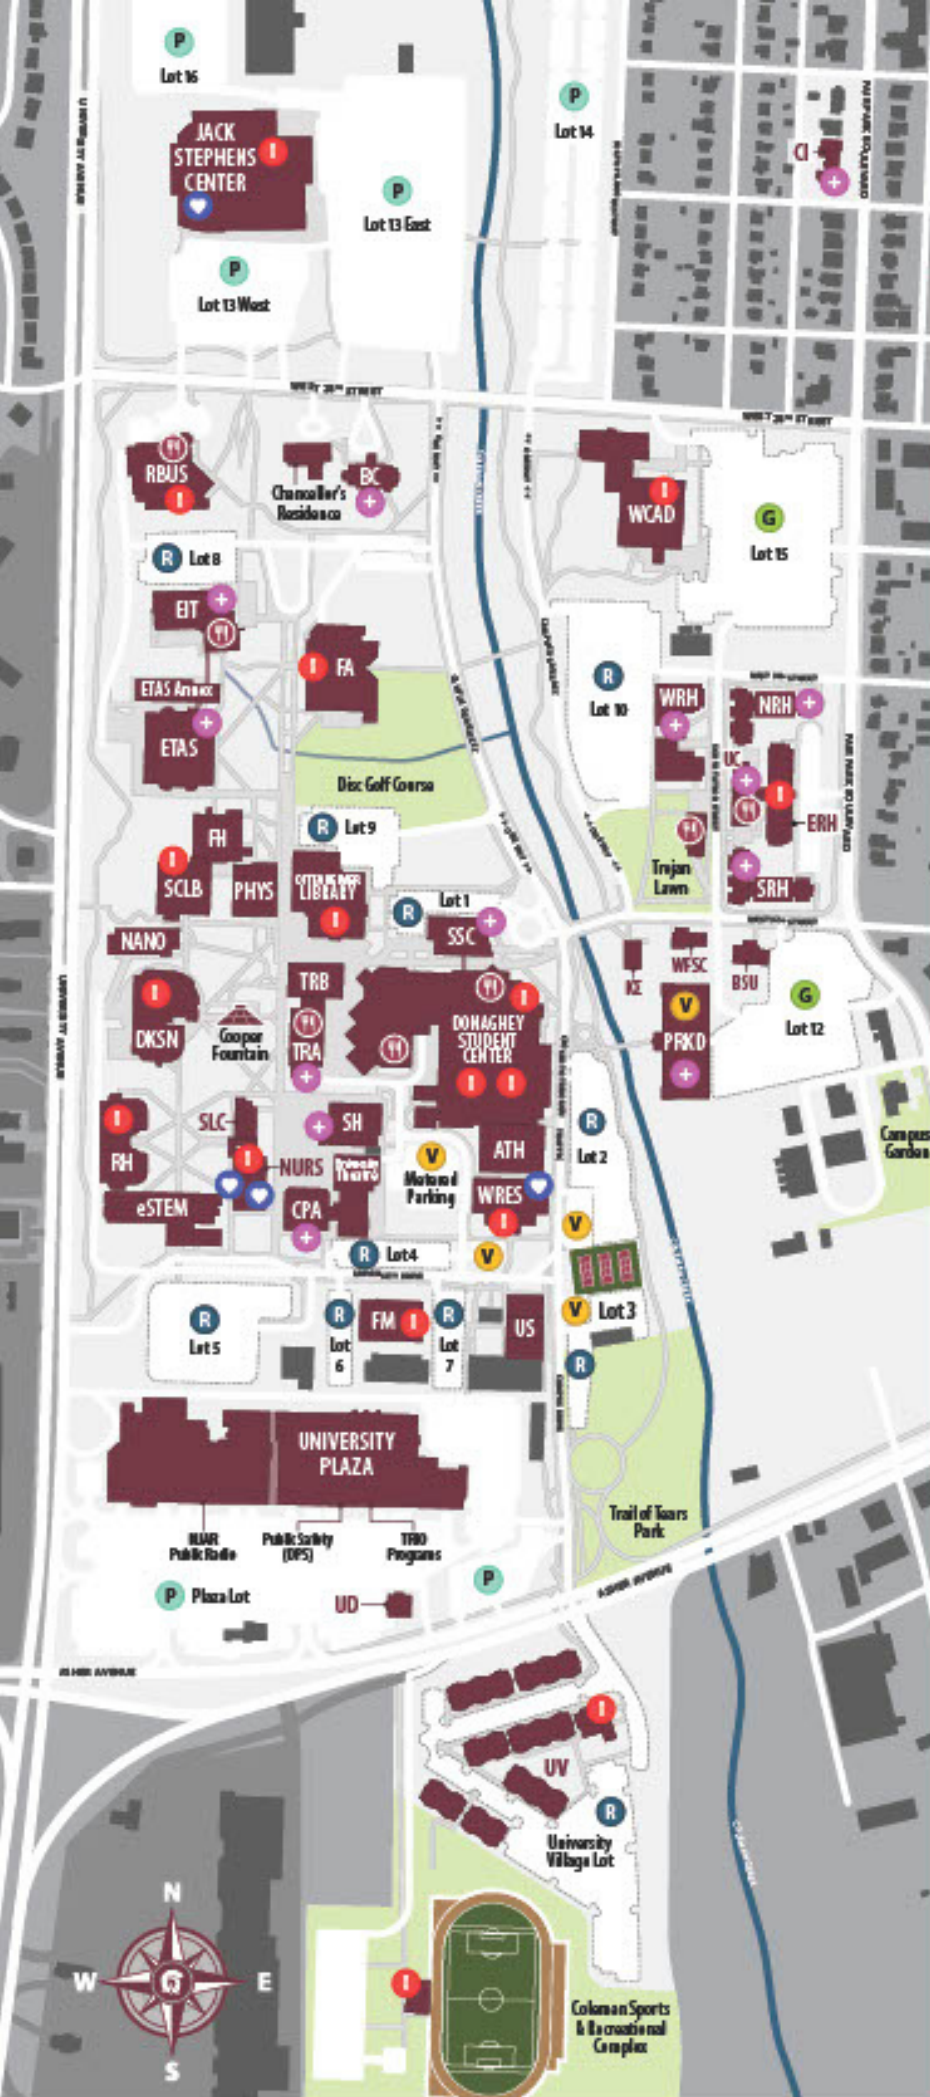

- Insert device into either nostril and press plunger firmly.

STAY

- Call 911 immediately after giving the first dose.
- Wait with the person until help arrives.
