Michael Flannery
Professor of Law Michael Flannery recently released three books:

Ken Gallant
Professor Ken Gallant discussed the issue of Arkansas weapons permits for a story that appeared in the Jan. 15 issue of the Arkansas Democrat-Gazette titled “Rulings address carrying weapons.”

Lyn Entrikin Goering
Feb. 25, Visiting Professor Lyn Entrikin Goering, along with Nova Professor David Cleveland, presented “Professional Responsibility in the Legal Writing Classroom” at the Capitol Area Legal Writing Conference in Washington, D.C., at George Washington University Law School. The presentation proposed a greater emphasis on teaching professionalism in the contexts where ethics issues arise in practice.

Ranko Shiraki Oliver
Associate Professor Ranko Shiraki Oliver testified before the House Public Health, Labor & Welfare Committee of the Arkansas Legislature about House Bill 1315 “An Act to Provide Health Insurance Coverage for Autism Spectrum Disorders and other Purposes.” Her testimony explained Applied Behavior Analysis (ABA) therapy, which is one of the treatments potentially covered by this bill, fall within the category of “supportive services/related services” to which children with disabilities are entitled under the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (federal) and the Children with Disabilities Act (Arkansas).

March 10-12, Oliver attended a two-day symposium at The University of the Pacific McGeorge School of of Law in Sacramento, Calif. The symposium was titled “The Global Impact and Implementation of Human Rights Norms,” and she presented on the panel “Human Rights and Labor Law.” The topic of Oliver’s presentation, which will become an article to be published at McGeorge School of Law, was “Effect of Globalization and The North American Agreement on Labor Cooperation of 1994 on Labor Rights of Mexican workers.”

Oliver was one of six panelists who spoke at a March 16 program sponsored by APALSA and HLSA. Other panelists were Professor Philip D. Oliver; Professor Kenneth Gallant; Immigration Practitioner Guillermo Hernandez; Maricella Garcia, Catholic Charities of Arkansas Immigration Services; and Ross Deacon, Chief Executive Officer of Safe Foods, Inc. The theme of the program was advice for students interested in obtaining jobs in immigration law or international law.
